We know our business and we understand yours.

The foundry industry is essential to virtually every segment of our economy. Both labor and capital intensive, it faces myriad challenges: skilled labor shortages; increasing labor, material and energy costs; expensive compliance issues; and global competition, to name just a few.

Overcoming these challenges is only possible with the right people leading, managing and manning foundry plants and businesses. Capable foundry people are harder than ever to find, but they are out there. That's where we come in.

Our committed, professional, hands-on recruiting approach has proven effective for foundry companies of all sizes, ranging from divisions of major corporations to small, family owned operations.

Let us know how we can help you!

Greg Borchert has been working in the foundry industry since 1972 and in the search business since 1977. He started in an operating foundry right out of college, was promoted three times in five years, then accepted an opportunity to join a large Chicago-based search firm as their Foundry Recruiter. After ten successful years in that organization, including a promotion to Industrial Division Director, he started Borchert Associates to focus exclusively on serving the foundry industry that he knows and loves.
